

General: Will you move my computer for me?

No.

IT Support does not physically move computers. IT Support will prepare your computer for moving by performing the following: We will shut down the computer upon notification and will disconnect peripherals. It is then the owner's responsibility to have the computer moved. Information Systems Support will then reconnect the computer to the network and peripherals when notified that the computer is in its new location.

Author: David Wallis

Last update: 2004-08-11 10:51