

General: Do you charge for Support?

There is no charge for effort. There is no charge for standard office applications and operating system software for which site licenses have been obtained. There is a charge for special purpose software and for hardware. Your IT Support person will back charge your cost code. You must have permission from the cost code approver before this software/hardware can be ordered or installed.

Author: David Wallis

Last update: 2004-08-11 10:58